ANIMAL LIBERATION FRONT

ACTION REPORT

No. 11

- SEPTEMBER 1984 -

Reports of direct action carried out by the Animal Liberation Front and other similar organisations.

Produced by the Animal Liberation Front :

BCM Box 1160
London WC1N 3XX

(All actions have taken place in England unless stated otherwise)

EARLY SEPTEMBER 1984 - NOTTINGHAM

ALF carried out an attack on four vans belonging to Seymours Meat Co in Hockley Road. Paint stripper was thrown over the vehicles, their tyres were let down and their windscreen wipers pulled off.

EARLY SEPTEMBER 1984 - RAMSGATE, KENT

Anti-cruelty slogans painted on local monkey zoo.

SEPTEMBER 1984 - BEDS, BUCKS & HERTS

During September the Combined Counties Animal Liberation Front carried out the following actions:

About 50 butchers' shop windows smashed with damage in the region of £25,000. (Luton, Dunstable, Tring, Milton Keynes, Woburn).
100 Pheasants due to be shot by bloodsports fanatics, liberated with approximately £1,500 damage. (Woburn, Dunsmore, Luton and surrounding countryside). Also £50 worth of snares destroyed in same areas.
Locks of butchers and fur shops glued (Luton, Milton Keynes).
Slogans painted on a slaughterhouse in Luton and on various butchers shops.

1 SEPTEMBER 1984 - POOLE, DORSET

The Hidden House Restaurant in Ashley Cross, notorious for selling frogs legs, had five windows broken and slogans sprayed in red paint by the ALF.

1 SEPTEMBER 1984 - COVENTRY, WEST MIDLANDS

Windows of two butchers shops smashed by ALF activists.

1 SEPTEMBER 1984 - DUNSTABLE, BEDS

Butcher Eric Bradshaw found a hole as big as his thumb in the window of his West Street shop after it had been attacked using a catapult.

1 SEPTEMBER 1984 - HOLLAND

Members of the Dierenbevrijdings-front (Dutch ALF) were responsible for rescuing about 80 Chinchillas in raids on two fur farms.
The animals were later taken to good homes.
The action was carried out as a protest against the fur trade.
The fur farms were in Hulshorst and Leunen.
A spokesman for the DBF said later "In the Netherlands thousands of Chinchilla skins are produced. 150 Chinchillas have to be murdered to make one coat".

2 SEPTEMBER 1984 - MELLING, MERSEYSIDE

Much publicity was gained after an ALF activist dressed as Santa Claus to rescue birds being fattened for christmas from a turkey farm.

The man, who refused to be named in the Press, went with 15 other members - dressed in camouflage gear and balaclava helmets - to carry out a dawn raid at White Gates farm, Spurriers Lane, Melling.

After breaking into rearing sheds, the raiders escaped with 42 birds - which they claimed were being kept in poor conditions. The raid is the first the Merseyside Cell of the ALF has carried out on a Turkey farm, and the spokesman said it has been planned for some time.
"We have had that particular farm under surveillance for months now because it is the beggest factory farm complex on Merseyside. "I was wearing a father christmas outfit, and we carried them away in sacks. They are now at a sanctuary where they are being kept in free range conditions" the man told the Liverpool Daily Post. And he warned there would be more raids: "We are getting a lot of public support and sympathy, so we can step up our campaign and hit these places even harder."
The spokesman continued defiantly "We realise we are breaking the law, and we know we face serious charges, but we consider our actions are justified and if we get caught we are prepared to face the consequences."
The Turkey farmer, Edward Webster, had another farm in Lyeham Lane, Latham daubed with animal rights slogans two years ago.

2 SEPTEMBER 1984 - LEYTONSTONE, EAST LONDON

Members of the ALF continued their attacks on businesses trading in meat in the area.
In the early hours of the morning the group smashed the windows of E R Jones butchers shop in Hainult Road. It was the fourth time the shop had been the victim of such attacks.
In a call to the Waltham Forest Guardian, an anonymous spokesman for the ALF said the attacks are being carried out to draw public attention to animal abuse and to the moral issue of meat being eaten when people in the Third World cannot buy enough vegetables.

2 SEPTEMBER 1984 - WREXHAM, NORTH WALES

Window of Eric Edwards butchers shop in Rhosddu Road broken.

3 SEPTEMBER 1984 - KINGS CROSS, LONDON

Eight rabbits being sent off for painful experiments were rescued by ALF activists from Kings Cross Station.
The rabbits were in transit from Froxfield laboratory animal breeders in Hampshire to Dundee University animal torture labs. One of the activists posed as a representative of Froxfield and was allowed to take the rabbits away after claiming that they could not be sent to the lab as they were diseased.

3 SEPTEMBER 1984 - MACCLESFIELD, CHESHIRE

ALF group glued lock of Match-A-Tac fishing tackle shop for the second time in less than a week.
Locks of Robinson & Walsh butchers also superglued.

ALF daubed the recently cleaned Council Offices in red paint because of the refusal to ban animal circuses from Council owned land.

3 SEPTEMBER 1984 - DUNSTABLE, BEDS

Three butchers shops - Pollards in High Street North, Tilley's in High Street South and Meads in Langdale Road - had their windows smashed by means of a catapult. Total damage came to over £1,000. Butcher Mike Pollard found a chrome nut lying beneath his shop window after the attack.
A Police spokesman told a local paper that they are now working on the theory that activists in the ALF could be responsible for the damage. He said that the attackers were firing either ball bearings or pellets at the windows causing small holes which necessitated the whole pane being replaced.
Butcher Nick Mead said that friends in the meat trade working in the Hemel Hempstead area had warned him of possible attacks after animal liberation supporters carried out similar attacks to shops in their town.
"They have been striking up and down the country so I was expecting something to happen. I stayed on the premises a few nights but on the one occasion I went out in the evening they attacked."

3 SEPTEMBER 1984 - WREXHAM, NORTH WALES

Another Wrexham butchers shop and a butcher's van were the targets for attacks, which Wrexham Police believe to be the work of the ALF.
The window of Roystons butchers in Chester Road was damaged with an air rifle pellet in the early hours of the morning. This follows a similar attack on Eric Edwards' butchers in Rhosddu Road; and a butcher's van parked at Railway Road, Rhosddu had paint stripper poured over it, etching the initials ALF, causing £500 worth of damage.

Windows of four butchers shops smashed by ALF activists.
One of the windows was worth £3,000 and was not insured as premiums on butchers shop windows in Coventry are so high because of ALF action. The window is now permanently boarded up.
Another of the windows belonged to J Taylor, making this the eighth ALF action on his premises. He had wire shutters fixed to all his front windows, but a big side window was discovered and smashed.

4 SEPTEMBER 1984 - ST ALBANS, HERTS

Members of the ALF hurled a brick through the window of a St Albans furriers. The attack on Wright & Sons shop in Waddington Road, occurred in the early hours of the morning. A young man, who claimed to live locally, telephoned the Herts Advertiser soon afterwards and said the ALF were responsible for the attack.
"We believe that direct action is the only way we will achieve our aims, in this case of eradicating abuse of animals purely for profit" he added. He went on to say that similar action had been successful in forcing the closure of a Mink farm in Essex. The ALF campaigned against it with midnight attacks during which Mink were released into the wild.
"There is no justification for the fur trade. It purely profits from the abuse of animals for the sake of peoples' mistaken ignorance and vanity" he said.

Further attacks on the shop and butchers in the area were threatened. Staff at the shop refused to comment on the incident.
Earlier this year the ALF claimed responsibility for daubing city centre butchers with slogans and setting fire to the offices of a gamekeepers' supplies company in Colney Heath.
The local Police, announcing last month's vandalism figures, said considerable damage had been caused by ALF members, mostly confined to premises associated with animals.

4 SEPTEMBER 1984 - GARLINGE, NR MARGATE, KENT

ALF activists paint-strippered van belonging to Olivers the Butchers. A van belonging to a pet shop where live animals are kept a long time in confined conditions was also paint-strippered.

4 SEPTEMBER 1984 - SANDWICH & DEAL, KENT

Over 20 shops had their locks glued by ALF. These included butchers, fishmongers and furriers.

5 SEPTEMBER 1984 - BOURNEMOUTH, DORSET

Anti-fur slogans painted on new Bournemouth International Centre, where fur shows were due to take place.

6 SEPTEMBER 1984 - DUNSTABLE, BEDS

Catapult used to smash window of Pollards butchers shop in High Street North for the second time in four days.
Butcher Mike Pollard told a local newspaper "The second time it was just as if somebody had fired a Winchester, it knocked a clean hole through quarter-inch thick plate glass, so it must have been something high powered. It could have been fired from a passing car. You can now buy catapults which are like miniature crossbows, but I can't think who would do this crazy thing."

7 SEPTEMBER 1984 - MACCLESFIELD, CHESHIRE

Robinson & Walsh butchers attacked for the fifth time by the ALF, when slogans were painted on the shop.

8 SEPTEMBER 1984 - HAYES, KENT

ALF activists caused thousands of pounds worth of damage in a midnight raid on the home of vet John Scarnell, a man guilty of torturing animals at the Wellcome Research Laboratories in Beckenham.
The raiders claimed that Scarnell had carried out lethal poisoning tests on dogs at the laboratories. During the attack the activists smashed a glass front door, poured paint stripper on a car and hurled a rock through the car windscreen.
The raid was the 16th attack on Wellcome workers by the ALF and the second time that Scarnell's home has been attacked.
According to the Bromley Times, Wellcome bosses fear ALF activists may have stolen a top secret hit-list of key staff addresses. A spokesman said "It is possible that they do have a list, but it would be fairly old, from a time before our security was tightened, and it would not have been obtained by legal means."

8 SEPTEMBER 1984 - MACCLESFIELD, CHESHIRE

A private slaughterhouse on Bank Street was attacked by ALF activists for the fifth time.

9 SEPTEMBER 1984 - FULHAM, WEST LONDON

Members of the ALF carried out an early evening raid on an animal research laboratory at the Charing Cross Hospital. The raid took place during the hospital's visiting hours and the ALF activists posed as visitors in order to enter the hospital premises.
In a statement to the Fulham Chronicle a Front member said that two people had entered the Neurology Dept and rescued a white rat and a mouse. The statement continues "Documents relating to animal experimentation were also revealed. From these documents it was clear that the vivisectors spend some of their time giving heart attacks and strokes to animals and slicing up their brains."
A spokesman for the hospital confirmed that the animals had been stolen. Photographs and documents had been ripped up and scattered round the room - and drawers had been interfered with.
A piece of paper bearing the initials ALF was left at the scene, the official added.
"The animals are being used for research in connection with neurological disorders" the spokesman said.
Experiments on animals - including Sheep and Goats - are carried out at the hospital but in a different wing, he added.
"I am aware that there have been threats that the ALF would attempt to penetrate the unit" he added.
The ALF official - a woman - contacted the Chronicle from a public phone booth, but she would not say whether she took part in the raid.
"It's up to individuals to take action and claim responsibility" she said.
The ALF say the animals are now "in good homes".
Damage was also caused to several empty laboratory animal cages during the raid.

9 SEPTEMBER 1984 - LEAMINGTON, WARWICKS

ALF activists smashed a large plate glass window of Ray's Furs.

10 SEPTEMBER 1984 - COVENTRY, WEST MIDLANDS

Window of The Guntrap gunshop smashed by ALF activists.

10 SEPTEMBER 1984 - BULKINGTON, WEST MIDLANDS

ALF members daubed anti-fishing slogans on buildings at a maggot farm in the early hours of the morning.
Police stated to the Coventry Evening Telegraph that they found the slogan 'Fishing is a blood sport' daubed on a building.

10 SEPTEMBER 1984 - MACCLESFIELD, CHESHIRE

Moorland Saddlers bloodsports shop attacked by ALF for fourth time this year. Brick thrown through large window. Estimated damage £300.
Shop is owned by Richard Morley, point-to-point secretary for Staffordshire Moorland Hunt.

11 SEPTEMBER 1984 - SOLIHULL, WEST MIDLANDS

In late night attacks large plate glass windows at two butchers shops were smashed causing damage put at several hundred pounds.
A telephone call to The Birmingham Post & Mail claimed the ALF was responsible.
The anonymous caller said the group had "bricked" the shops "because of the cruelty in the meat industry". Damaged were windows at B Willock family butchers in Longmore Road, Shirley and Bennetts (Sutton Coldfield) Ltd in Drury Lane, off Solihull's Mell Square precinct.
The overnight attacks came hours after both shops received 'liveliest butchers in the West Midlands' awards.
Butcher Mr Bob Willock arrived at his shop to find a large hole in the window. He said it would cost at least £200 to replace.

11 SEPTEMBER 1984 - ROCHESTER, KENT

Locks of three butchers shops glued by ALF activists.

11 SEPTEMBER 1984 - BERLIN, WEST GERMANY

40 Beagles rescued from vivisection by Autonome Tierschutzer.

12 SEPTEMBER 1984 - SOUTH MIMMS, HERTS

The ALF carried out a second attack on the Clare Hall research laboratories. An anonymous caller to the Potters Bar Press said the raid took place in the early hours of the morning.
The caller said the raid was on the animal breeding unit at the laboratory, which is due to open in October. He said the group smashed a plate glass window, threw petrol inside and set it alight.
The ALF had previously carried out a raid on the laboratory, which belongs to the Imperial Cancer Research Fund, last December when £100,000 worth of damage was caused.
In that attack the raiders cut wiring and poured paint over electrical equipment.
The caller said the laboratory had lied when they said animal testing was a small part of the research. He said "The public have been deceived. Hundreds if not thousands of animals will be bred there. The place is a vivisection laboratory, there is no doubt about that."
The caller refused to go into more details of the incident or to identify himself.
A Police spokesman said they had also received an anonymous telephone call from an animal welfare group claiming responsibility.
"We can call it an attempted arson because fortunately the room did not ignite" he said.
"It's hard to put a value on the damage, but it would be about £200-£300 for the double-glazed window and about £50 for smoke damage.
"This is not the first such attack by this group and I am sure it will not be the last" he added.
Before carrying out the attack the ALF group checked the premises to make sure that the fire would not endanger either human or animal life.

13 SEPTEMBER 1984 - COPENHAGEN, DENMARK

In the first raid of the Danish ALF the window of the Royal Fur Shop was smashed and the slogans 'Pelse Er Mord' (Furs are Murder) and 'Liv Før Profit' (Life before profit) painted on the walls.

14 SEPTEMBER 1984 - EVESHAM, WORCS

ALF activists carried out a raid on a meat products factory. In total darkness they daubed slogans on walls of the Robirch factory in Mill Street, using bright red paint. One said 'Say No To Factory Farming'.

MID SEPTEMBER 1984 - ISLINGTON, NORTH LONDON

ALF activists sprayed slogans in red paint on the doors and walls of the Biorex animal torture laboratories at Canonbury Villas, the scene of many previous ALF attacks.

16 SEPTEMBER 1984 - CHARING, KENT

Animal rights demonstrators broke into offices of Coveney's slaughterhouse. They painted slogans on walls, scattered documents and tipped glue about the premises. Later an anonymous telephone caller to the Kentish Express claimed the incident had been carried out by the League of St Francis, and said damage had been caused. He said more than ten people took part.
Ashford Police were called in to investigate the break-in. Nothing appeared to have been stolen, but slogans had been left on walls declaring Animal Death Camp, Animal Belsen and ALF.

16 SEPTEMBER 1984 - PARIS, FRANCE

Members of FLA (Front de Liberation de L'Animal) damaged windscreen wipers of a fishmonger's lorry.

17 SEPTEMBER 1984 - STANBOROUGH BURY, HERTS

Members of the ALF rescued five hens after breaking into a shed at Stanborough Bury Farm. The activists also damaged some farm vehicles. In a telephone call to the Welwyn & Hatfield Times, an ALF member said that incidents like this would continue until hens are kept in free range conditions.
A spokesman for the group said "The hens were in a bad state. They had lost many feathers and were being kept in cramped conditions. The liberated hens are now living in free range conditions. The ALF will continue its actions until battery farming is stopped." Farmer Jim Crawford revealed that the protestors sprayed the letters ALF on a lorry and 'liberated farm' on the side of the hen shed.

17 SEPTEMBER 1984 - HOUNSLOW, MIDDX

The ALF caused £2,200 damage to the Burger King restaurant in Hounslow High Street, in a dawn raid. Activists smashed nine plate glass windows and daubed a wall with the slogan 'Meat Is Murder'.
Police have appealed for any witnesses who saw the incident being carried out at about 5am. A spokesman said "We feel sure they must have used a heavy hammer or a crowbar, and there must have been a great deal of noise." The attack was the latest in a series of criminal damage incidents, involving Burger King, other fast food restaurants and butchers shops in central Hounslow. The ALF has claimed responsibility for several of the earlier attacks.

17 SEPTEMBER 1984 - RAMSGATE, KENT

Locks of two butchers shops and a fishmonger glued up by ALF.

19 SEPTEMBER 1984 - RAMSGATE, KENT

Just after midnight ALF activists paint-strippered the expensive car of Alan Smith, the managing director of the notorious Charles River lab animals breeding establishment.
Activists also paint-strippered the signs to a local Monkey zoo where the Monkeys are kept in very confined conditions.

19 SEPTEMBER 1984 - CASTLETON, SOUTH WALES

£800 damage caused and slogans 'scum' and 'Animal Torture' daubed by ALF group at garden centre which has mini-zoo.

20 SEPTEMBER 1984 - ROEHAMPTON, SW LONDON

ALF activists painted slogans on the home of an Iranian diplomat where the ritual slaughter of a Sheep had taken place a few days before.
Police had been guarding the house following threats from animal rights activists but when they took a few minutes break the ALF team moved in.
The diplomat is now keeping an armed guard in his house in case of further action.

20 SEPTEMBER 1984 - DONCASTER, SOUTH YORKS

ALF activists liberated 50 Mink from a fur farm near Doncaster. The Mink were being kept in small cages in disgusting conditions. The raiders broke down a compound fence to give the animals an escape route. The action was carried out despite the premises being guarded by three dogs, which the raiders managed to avoid.

20 SEPTEMBER 1984 - COVENTRY, WEST MIDLANDS

Eight members of East Midlands ALF forced their way into Lanchester Polytechnic in the early hours of the morning.
After meeting at a safe house several miles from Coventry city centre and discussing the plan,, the activists made their way to the Polytechnic in cars. Entrance to the building was made using bolt croppers and crowbars.
Slogans were sprayed on the walls and damage was limited to doors and windows to gain entry to the labs and animal houses. The purpose of the raid was to liberate a pre-arranged number of animals which the activists had found homes for prior to the raid.
23 Rabbits and 10 Rats were taken and a note and a symbolic red rose were left in place of the ex-internees. The note read 'In pity and in anger'.
The building was not alarmed so the break-in was not noticed until Friday morning.
Local Press were informed and the raid received extensive coverage on Mercia Sound (the local radio station). The fact that animals were liberated was at first denied on the air by a Polytechnic spokesman, who quoted damage as totalling £1,500. He later admitted animals were missing.

A vet looked at several Rabbits and commented on their bad condition. Most had scabbed and bleeding ears from canker and the smaller Rabbits' rear legs were scarred and bleeding because of the wire mesh floors of the crowded cages. The vet did not want his name linked with stolen animals, understandably, but gave them medication and all 33 animals are healthy and in caring homes.

20 SEPTEMBER 1984 - CANFORD MAGNA, DORSET

ALF activists raided a battery egg farm owned by ex-mayoress of Poole, Ma Adams, and rescued 15 anaemic and featherless Hens which were then taken to free range homes.
A delivery van and a tractor were extensively damaged and a large number of slogans painted.

22 SEPTEMBER 1984 - COPENHAGEN, DENMARK

Danish ALF painted slogans on four fur shops.

22 SEPTEMBER 1984 - RAMSGATE, KENT

The ALF was responsible for damage to animal abusers' vehicles and for slogans sprayed on a skin shop.
The words 'Furs mean death' were sprayed on the window of Cox's store in Broad Street in a late night raid. Paint stripper was also poured on one of the firm's vans.
An anonymous caller telephoned the Isle of Thanet Gazette claiming the attack had been carried out by the ALF. It was a protest against the sale of Goat and Sheep skin rugs, he said.
Paint stripper was also poured over Julie Balman's car while it was parked outside her house in Montefiore Avenue, Ramsgate. It was claimed the ALF were again responsible.
A Police spokesman said a sign in the front garden advertising Rabbits for sale was also sprayed with paint.
Mr Pip Griffin, Press Officer of Animal Rights Thanet, told the Isle of Thanet Gazette "We were not involved with the action, but we fully support the ALF and sympathise with the reasons the attacks took place."

23 SEPTEMBER 1984 - MORECAMBE, LANCS

ALF activists attacked an abattoir causing an estimated £2,000 worth of damage.
Slogans were sprayed on the walls of the R P Winder premises in Schola Green Lane, Morecambe, and on goods vehicles parked outside. Fuel tanks and radiators were filled with gravel and tyres were punctured. The initials of the Animal Liberation Front were also daubed on the building.
The vehicles attacked were five lorries and a van. Slogans included 'Blood Money' and 'Meat Means Murder'.

23 SEPTEMBER 1984 - WIGAN, LANCS

ALF raid at dawn on a battery unit by Wigan & Merseyside 'E' groups. Nine Hens rescued and placed in good homes.

23 SEPTEMBER 1984 - EDINBURGH, SCOTLAND

ALF attacked and smashed the windows of seven shops dealing in the murder of animals.
The shops hit included three butchers, a Capital Meat Centre, two fishmongers/poulterers and a meat trade supplier.
An advertising sign behind the window of the Capital Meat Centre was also cracked by the force of the attack. One of the butchers has already been attacked and its window smashed five times this year (this being the sixth).

24 SEPTEMBER 1984 - KINGSTON-ON-THAMES, SURREY

Maureen Burden convicted at Kingston Crown Court of theft of a Dog and causing actual bodily harm to a security guard during South Eastern Animal Liberation League raid on Surrey University Vivisection Labs at Guildford in March.
She was fined a total of £150 and ordered to pay £50 damages.
The liberated Dog has never been recovered by the authorities and is now in a good home.
Donations should be sent to:
Maureen Burden Defence Fund, c/o SEALL, PO Box 52, Bexhill-on-Sea, East Sussex TN40 1LY.

24 SEPTEMBER 1984 - BRIGHTON, EAST SUSSEX

Slogans in red paint were sprayed on walls and on vans parked at a meat storage depot across the road from Brighton abattoir.
The Evening Argus newspaper received an anonymous call claiming responsibility on behalf of the ALF.

26 SEPTEMBER 1984 - WREXHAM, NORTH WALES

Butchers shop attacked by ALF activists using a catapult.
Damage estimated at £120 was caused to a plate glass window in the shop.

26 SEPTEMBER 1984 - EBBW VALE, SOUTH WALES

Three butchers shops in the main street were the target of ALF activists.
Slogans were sprayed on windows of Woodleys, Carter & Williams and Len & Esters in a night time raid.

29 SEPTEMBER 1984 - BAGSHOT, SURREY

SEALL rescued 14 Beagles from an animal torture lab. The Beagles were taken in a raid on the kennels at the Bios Consultancy and Research Laboratories. Many of the Dogs had skin, mouth and eye infections as a result of cruel experiments.
The raiders took a video film of the action which was shown on the national TV news the following night.

30 SEPTEMBER 1984 - WINFORD, AVON

In the early hours Animal Liberation campaigners spray-painted slogans across Avon Livestock Market in Winford, near Bristol because of 'disgusting cruelty' to cattle. Later a press release - delivered by hand to the Western Daily Press office in Bristol

- in which the Animal Liberation Front claimed responsibility for the attack, was taken away by Police for fingerprint tests.
The release written in block capitals said baby calves too young to be away from their mothers had been seen brutally manhandled and thrown into transporters.
It complained of 'cattle beaten, kicked and goaded systematically as they are forced into the auction ring' and 'ears unnecessarily mutilated causing pain and distress'.
Auctioneers King Miles run the weekly markets in which some 700 cattle are sold, some for slaughter.
RSPCA Bristol secretary Mr Andrew Gibson said "We don't like the whole process. Some calves are transported from Scotland and even go on to Europe, loaded into lorries for 40 hours without food and water. We dislike the ear-piercing intensely; I am sure it causes pain. But it's a legal requirement and we have protested to the Government without success."

Windscreen wipers of poulterer's lorry damaged by FLA.

LATE SEPTEMBER 1984 - WOODSIDE, NR LUTON, BEDS

Gates of an intensive poultry farm chained up by ALF activists.

LATE SEPTEMBER 1984 - GLASGOW, SCOTLAND

Activists smashed windows of four fur shops.

LATE SEPTEMBER 1984 - WEST BRIDGFORD, NOTTINGHAM

ALF smashed windows of Pork Farms butchers shop in Central Avenue.
